

Sample Email Letter to Teachers

Subject: Looking for Peer Tutors

Hi,

The {life skills classroom/program} is looking for peer tutors to help with academic, social and adaptive programs. This is a great opportunity for your students to learn about disabilities, empathy and acceptance while my students benefit from learning from their peers.

Students who struggle academically and socially typically do very well as peer tutors when given a chance to be role models. Struggling readers can practice by reading skill-level appropriate books to students in the life skills program. Students who struggle with social interactions can practice the skills they need while working with my students. It is a win-win situation for everyone!

If you have any students that are interested in being peer tutors, please encourage them to stop by the life skills classroom. I'm also happy to come talk with your class if they have any questions about being peer tutors or the students in my class. If you have any concerns about potential peer tutors (academic or social), please feel free to contact me.

We need peer tutors throughout the day, so our schedule is flexible.

Your Name Here